(The text of the message is recopied on the back of the telegraph)

Born in York, PA, J. K. Duncan was a graduate of West Point who had done service in the army before the Civil War broke out. Col. J.K. Duncan was, at the time of this telegraph, the Colonel of Artillery in charge of all forts around New Orleans. He was captured when the forts fell and exchanged. He later served on Bragg's staff and died of fever in Knoxville, TN in 1862.
